HAT High-st cemetery was laid out over 100 years ago according to provisions of an ordinance passed by Circleville city council, June 10, 1883. The ordinance, signed by W. B. Thrall, mayor, and William McCulloch, clerk of council, provided for the purchase of the tract from Samuel Watt. One of the provisions provided the grounds to be laid off in lots 20x10 feet with alleys of six feet between the lots. The lots were to be "exposed at public outcry" for $1.50 each and the purchasers were to erect markers within 90 days to identify their lots. The cemetery was to be under the jurisdiction of city council. A sexton was to be appointed by the latter body "to take charge of the cemetery, keep clear of animals, keep the keys to the gates, dig graves, attend to the ringing and tolling of the bell for burials and see that the necessary tools and apparatus for lowering the coffin and filling the grave are on hand." A section of the ordinance also set aside a portion of the cemetery to be known as "Potter's Field," where persons unable to buy lots were to be interred. At the east end of the cemetery a 120-foot tract was set apart for the burial of colored persons. The last section of the ordinance contained an "enforcement clause" which said that any persons turning animals into the cemetery, letting down the fence or forcing the lock or hinges on the gate could be fined not less than $1 or more than $10 by the mayor.

That the Pickaway-co Agricultural Society, the organization which sponsored the first fair in this county in 1881, was organized at a mass meeting in the court house Friday, June 28, 1883. The society was organized under an act of the General Assembly which encouraged the growth of such organizations. At the first meeting the following officers were elected: Thomas Renick, president; Thomas Houston, vice-president; W. S. Darst, recording secretary; S. S. Denny, corresponding secretary; Matthew McCrea, treasurer, and directors, William M. Renick, Sr., William Millar, E. Florence, W. M. Renick, Jr., George Radcliff, Peter F. Cels, R. Campbell, Ferguson Fleming, Jonathan Renick and John Entrenken.

That Daniel Webster, senator from Massachusetts and one of the most noted characters in the early history of our country, was forced "to work his way" into Circleville when he visited here July 8, 1833. According to the story told in The Herald of the time, Mr. Webster, accompanied by a Senator Ewing, was making a good-will tour of Ohio via horse and buggy. "When about seven miles from town, July 8, 1833," The Herald of the time relates, "a tree fell across the road and they (Messrs. Webster and Ewing) were unable to pass. An honest yeoman was leisurely cutting the tree away when the two distinguished senators drove up. Not knowing the two men he promptly advised them that the best means of escaping the difficult situation, was to get down and aid him in the tree's removal." "They followed his advice," the newspaper relates, "Mr. Ewing first took the ax and wielded it with as much effect as he does in his arguments in the Senate and Bar. He was relieved by Mr. Webster, who was less familiar with chopping logs than with removing the obstructions of chop-logic from the wheels of government. His efforts were so ineffectual that the workman declared, 'You're not doing your best now, sir. You must be playing the possum! You don't bend your back enough, sir.' The tree was finally cut away and the travelers resumed their journey to Circleville," the story in The Herald concludes.

But Early History of Plant Was Hard Struggle With Injunction Suits—Many Think Rates Are Now Too Low and That Plant Lacks Reserve Capacity

BY HENRY C. HAGLOCH.

In the last article we were told about the success of the Bellefontaine municipal light, water and gas plants under one man, F. M. Baxley. In this article we will discuss the success of a light plant in Dover, Tuscarawas-co, where the plant has been run by service directors, none of whom ever served more than four successive years, and many of whom served only a year or less. The average terms of the service directors in charge would be about two years, or the term of the mayor who made the appointment.

Only one of these service directors was an electrician and one other, now the mayor, had been a stationery engineer. None of these service directors ever got more than $200 a month and the present salary is $150. The superintendent of lines and the chief engineer at the power plant have both been with the plant for years but do not draw large salaries.

TRIED-TECHNICAL MAN

Many years ago the city tried putting a technical man in charge. The office of superintendent of the light plant was created and civil service examinations held for a field of applicants made up of electrical engineers and executives. The position was awarded an engineer who made the highest grade, furnished excellent references and had had several years practical experience. But his administration was the worst in the light plant history and the position was abolished permanently in less than two years.

The history of the Dover light plant is a story of long bitter court fights, of citizens' leagues for the plant, and of tax payers' leagues against the plant.

Trouble with the old electric company, predecessors to the Ohio Power Co., began back in 1900. In those days the present central power system had not been developed. City council charged the service was poor and the street lighting and domestic rates too high. It was 1908 before the plant was put in operation after the city had fought and overcome court injunctions brought by taxpayers to prevent the necessary bond issue.

The power company's street lighting contract expired a few months before the new city plant was ready and the town was in darkness until the plant opened. The plant started with gas engines and money was taken from the general fund, and the city waterworks plant, long established, was robbed to keep the light plant going.

The 1908 bond issue had been for $35,000 and in 1916 there was another bond issue for $21,000. In 1920 there was another big court battle and campaign that terminated with a municipal election in which the citizens of Dover voted 13 to 1 in favor of a $100,000 bond issue to replace the gas engines with unflow steam engines. The firm that bid in the bonds refused to take them and the contractor for the new plant bought them in.

FORCED APPRAISAL
Enemies of the light plant forced an appraisal by a reputable firm of accountants in 1924 but the plant stood the scrutiny. The first turbine, a 750 Westinghouse machine, was installed in 1925. The second turbine, a 1500 K. W. Allis-Chalmers, was installed in 1927.

The plant at present includes these two turbines, two of the old

FIGURES FOR WHEAT ACREAGE CUT IN PICKAWAY-CO QUOTED

Agricultural Department Shows County Devoted More Acres To Wheat Than Any Other County in Five-Year Period; Farmers Still Uncertain of Plan.

Pickaway-co's wheat acreage will be reduced to approximately 527,517 acres in 1934 under the government's program. To effect this reduction in yield acreage is to be slashed.

According to figures announced in Washington, D. C., the five-year average of production in Pickaway-co from 1928-1932 was 978,800 bushels. The seeded acreage in Pickaway-co was the largest in Ohio, 87,500 acres but the yield per seeded acre during the period was 14.4 bushels. This figure does not rate very high in the state.

Since the average production in Pickaway-co was the largest in the state during the past five years the reduction will be the largest.

"UP IN THE AIR"
It is easily seen that farmers of this county are "up in the air" regarding the reduction plan. However, it is equally apparent that they are anxious to co-operate and follow the plan laid down by the government.

More explicit information is expected to be obtainable within the next few weeks. The county allotments are by bushels. The allotments to be made for production by each farmer will not represent the amount of grain they will be allowed, but will represent the amount on which payment will be made to them by the government from proceeds of the processing tax.

In the agreement under which they will get payments in the number of bushels allotted to them they must pledge to cut acreage by any amount yet to be determined. The maximum possible of the cut to be required is taking 20 per cent acreage out of production. As to the amount of wheat grown by them under this agreement and which is in excess of their allotment, there will be no payment on it by the government.

MUST KEEP WORD
The farmer who signs an agreement and fails to reduce his acreage after receiving money for doing so will be in danger of going out of the farming business. In the contract he signs there will be a provision now being put into final form, that will give farm administrators a claim against the farmer for the amount paid in case of non-compliance of the contract by the grower. It will have the effect of a lien on the farm.

So far the administrator to handle Pickaway-co has not been named.

Sell-Out For "Air Day" Banquet Here Expected

A sell-out is expected for Monday evening's banquet, sponsored by the Kiwanis club, honoring the fourth annual "Air Day" of the local chapter of the National Aeronautic association. Tom A. Renick, R. C. Colville, and Mack Purcell Jr., in charge of tickets, reported they have a few left so anyone who is undetermined whether or not to attend should decide at the earliest moment.

The banquet will be held at Hanley's restaurant with the attendance limited to 95 persons. A feature of the banquet, and its drawing card, is John B. Garver, of Strasburg, O., veteran of the British and American air corps during the great war, who will relate his experiences in the air. Mr. Garver is a splendid orator and his talk is one which will be remembered.

Mr. Garver is officially credited with two German balloons and two planes in the American air corps while in the British Royal Air force.

He has never cracked up but one ship, despite many landings on dangerous ground. He has had a wide experience in all types of fighting planes.

The meeting begins at 6:30 p. m.

Veteran Republican Retreat Before Advances; More Changes Seen

CONNER GETS JOB

Other Appointments to be Made Shortly

By International News Service
With veteran Republicans retreating before the Democrats today were rapidly installing themselves in control of Ohio's scores of lucrative federal offices.

Denied admission to the "picneter" during the administration of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, they have been placed in the saddle by the election of President Roosevelt. The deluge of Democratic patronage appointments from Washington reached a new peak yesterday, but may be expected to go even higher. Four Democrats prepared today to take over the offices of four Republicans who have served as internal revenue collectors. Two Democrats were ready to replace two Republicans as district attorneys.

STAFFS CHANGE TOO

Many staff changes will be made as a result, bringing Democrats into office to replace Republicans where civil service law is not a barrier.

Thomas J. Conner, of Cincinnati, who has been an active and prominent Democrat for 40 years, will have at his disposal the appointment of 40 deputy collectors in his position as internal revenue collector for the southern Ohio district, to which he was appointed yesterday. He will receive a $7,000 salary.

Similar patronage control was

Talk of a "public uprising" and "picketing" was heard at the meeting, directed against Charles V. Taylor, first merchant to obtain a permit from the state liquor control commission to place beer on sale.

Circleville's industries and business places were preparing to participate in the National Recovery Act after receiving blanks from the post office distributed by mail carriers.

Thirty-eight stamps, postmaster's stamps, etc., will be given each business place.

SOME UNCERTAINTY

Some business houses, restaurants and confectioneries, in stance, are viewing the hour change with concern, and not yet certain which way should move. In many cases, the change will mean doubling of the number of employees. The same holds true in several instances.

Information from the Chamber of Commerce, from the office of Gen. Hugh Johnson, federal administrator, will be received sometime next week a communication to the Chamber of Commerce. At that time the Chamber of Commerce will take action to bring the city 100 per cent under the code.

The Container Corporation of America is ready to begin operation Tuesday morning under the code with four six-hour shifts on the job instead of three eight-hour shifts.

COURT HOUSE, ALSO

One of the far-reaching effects of the NRA will be seen at the court house. It is understood, where a four-hour week will go into effect in all offices having three or more employees. This includes the auditor's, sheriff's, probate judge's and surveyor's.

A meeting was being held Saturday to determine what course to follow. One plan that was receiving support in the court house was to close on Saturday and Wednesday afternoons and remain open the full hours the remainder of the week. Whether other offices where less than three are employed, including clerk of courts, common pleas judge and recorder, would follow the same plan is unknown.

Some decision was expected to be made in the meeting with the county commissioners to be held on Monday.

A fine musical feature has been arranged in the form of a quintet known as the Trumpeteers.

AUTO SOUGHT

Local police, Saturday, were asked by Hocking-co authorities to be on the lookout for a stolen Essex automobile, bearing license plates, 462-412, which was taken from Logan about 10:25 p. m. Friday. One side of the car is painted yellow.

The persons who took the car started out toward Circleville, according to the report received here.

INDICTED

Twenty-four Chicagoans were named in conspiracy indictments in the Cook County Criminal Court at Chicago Thursday. The indictments were the outgrowth of a secret three months' war against racketeers. Among those named in the true bills are Dr. Benjamin N. Squires (left), former head of the Cleaners and Dyers Institute, and Alderman Oscar F. Nelson (right), Republican leader in the Chicago city council. Alderman Nelson is attorney for the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' Union, Local No. 712.

FIGURES FOR WHEAT ACREAGE CUT IN PICKAWAY-CO QUOTED

Agricultural Department Shows County Devoted More Acres To Wheat Than Any Other County in Five-Year Period; Farmers Still Uncertain of Plan.

Pickaway-co's wheat acreage will be reduced to approximately 527,517 acres in 1934 under the government's program. To effect this reduction in yield acreage is to be slashed.

According to figures announced in Washington, D. C., the five-year average of production in Pickaway-co from 1928-1932 was 978,800 bushels. The seeded acreage in Pickaway-co was the largest in Ohio, 650,000 acres but the yield per seeded acre during the period was 14.4 bushels. This figure does not rate very high in the state. Since the average production in Pickaway-co was the largest in the state during the past five years the reduction will be the largest.

"UP IN THE AIR"

It is easily seen that farmers of this county are "up in the air" regarding the reduction plan. However, it is equally apparent that they are anxious to co-operate and follow the plan laid down by the government. More explicit information is expected to be obtainable within the next few weeks. The county allotments are by bushels. The allotments to be made for production by each farmer will not represent the amount of grain they will be allowed, but will represent the amount on which payment will be made to them by the government from proceeds of the processing tax.

In the agreement under which they will get payments in the number of bushels allotted to them they must pledge to cut acreage by any amount yet to be determined. The maximum possible of the cut to be required is taking 20 per cent acreage out of production. As to the amount of wheat grown by them under this agreement and which is in excess of their allotment, there will be no payment on it by the government.

Sell-Out For "Air Day" Banquet Here Expected

A sell out is expected for Monday evening's banquet, sponsored by the Kiwanis club, ushering in the fourth annual "Air Day" of the local chapter of the National Aeronautic association. Tom A. Renick, R. C. Colville and Mack Parrott Jr., in charge of tickets, reported they have a few left so anyone who is undecided whether or not to attend should decide at the earliest moment. The banquet will be held at Hanley's tearoom with the attendance limited to 95 persons. A feature of the banquet, and its drawing card, is John B. Garver, of Strasburg, O., veteran of the British and American air corps during the great war, who will relate his experiences in the air. Mr. Garver is a splendid orator and his talk is one which will be remembered. Mr. Garver is officially credited with two German balloons and two planes in the American air corps and two balloons and three planes while in the British Royal Air force. He has never cracked up but one ship despite many landings on dangerous ground. He has had a wide experience in all types of fighting planes. The meeting begins at 6:30 p. m.

DEMOS. BEGIN TO MOVE INTO FEDERAL JOBS

Veteran Republican Retreat Before Advances; More Changes Seen

CONNER GETS JOB

Other Appointments to be Made Shortly

By International News Service
With veteran Republicans retreating before them, the Democrats today were rapidly installing themselves in control of Ohio's scores of lucrative federal offices. Denied admission to the "picnicker" during the administrations of Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, they have been placed in the saddle by the election of President Roosevelt. The deluge of Democratic patronage appointments from Washington reached a new peak yesterday, but may be expected to go even higher. Four Democrats prepared today to take over the offices of four Republicans who have served as internal revenue collectors. Two Democrats were ready to replace two Republicans as district attorneys.

STAFFS CHANGE TOO

Many staff changes will be made as a result, bringing Democrats into office to replace Republicans where civil service law is not a barrier.

Thomas J. Conner, of Cincinnati, who has been an active and prominent Democrat for 40 years, will have at his disposal the appointment of 40 deputy collectors in his position as internal revenue collector for the southern Ohio district, to which he was appointed yesterday. He will receive a $7,000 salary.

WESTERVILLE FIGHTS BEER

'Dryest Town in Ohio' Facing Battle; Public Meeting Is Called.

WESTERVILLE, July 29—Aroused at the sale of beer in this dry capital of the world for the first time in 60 years, a group of Westerville residents today pushed forward in their program for a local option vote on the issue.

The staunch drys lost no time in getting into action. Twenty selected and protesting citizens assembled last night to outline a course of action, following the first day's sale of the legal beverage.

Talk of a "public uprising" and "picketing" was heard at the meeting, directed against Charles V. Taylor, first merchant to obtain a permit from the state liquor control commission to place beer on sale.

His thirty-fifth year as pastor of Trinity Lutheran church will be observed at morning services, Sunday, by Dr. G. J. Troutman. The event will be observed very quietly with Dr. Troutman's sermon topic to be: "Our Relation as Pastor and People During the Past Years."

FIREMEN CALLED

The fire department answered two calls Friday afternoon and early Saturday. A blaze in a Ford sedan parked on W. Main-st was extinguished at 4:30 p. m. Friday. The name of the owner of the car was not learned. Little damage resulted when an overheated chimney set fire to the wall in a small house on Weldon-ave at 6:30 a. m. Saturday. The owner's name was not learned by firemen.

COURT HOUSE HOUR CHANGE SEEN LIKELY

May Close Saturday, Wednesday Afternoons to Combat Hour Cut

STORES UNCERTAIN

C. of C. to Get Explanatory Report Soon

Circleville's industrial concerns and business places, Saturday, were preparing to file agreements to participate in the National Recovery Act after receiving blanks from the post office distributed by mail carriers.

Orville Trone, acting postmaster, said that agreements are not to be filed at the post office until Tuesday, Aug. 1. Each concern or business place will then receive the blue eagle, the NRA insignia, showing that the possessor has joined the great drive which is hoped to restore prosperity to the nation.

Thirty-eight stamps, placards, etc., will be given each participant.

SOME UNCERTAIN

Some business houses, restaurants and confectioneries for instance, are viewing the maximum hour schedule with comprehension not yet certain which way they should move. In many cases it will mean doubling of the number of employees. The same thing holds true in several other instances.

Information asked by Durward Dowden, president of the Chamber of Commerce, from the office of Gen. Hugh Johnson, federal administrator, will be received sometime next week a communication to Dowden discloses. At that time the Chamber of Commerce will take action to bring the city 100 per cent under the code.

The Container Corporation of America is ready to begin operation Tuesday morning under the code with four six-hour shifts on the job instead of three eight-hour shifts.

COURT HOUSE, ALSO

One of the far-reaching effects of the NRA will be seen at the court house, it is understood, where a 40-hour week will go into effect in all offices having three or more employees. This includes the auditor's, sheriff's, probate judge's and surveyor's.

A meeting was being held Saturday to determine what course to follow. One plan that was receiving support in the court house was to close on Saturday and Wednesday afternoons, and remain open the full hours the remainder of the week. Whether other offices where less than three are employed, including clerk of courts, common pleas judge and recorder, would follow the same plan is unknown.

Some decision was expected to be made in the meeting with the county commissioners to be advised of the necessity when they meet on Monday.

WRECKED AIRPLANE TAKEN THRU CITY

A truck bearing a badly wrecked Aeronca plane was parked on W. Main-st at noon Saturday while the driver and two other occupants ate lunch in a restaurant, but all of the occupants refused to disclose any information concerning the wrecked plane.

It was unofficially learned that the plane had been wrecked north of Columbus Friday evening. The pilot escaped with minor injuries. The wrecked plane was being taken to Cincinnati.

The Church Invites You

THE CHURCH'S CONTRIBUTION

Arthur M. Harris, a prominent religious business man, says, "The church is a necessity for the full development and assistance of the individual believer. It not only furnishes inspiration and assistance it is the very means, almost the sole means by which the individual is redeemed from selfishness. For, in the end, selfishness is at the bottom of neglect to attend church. The giving of one's self, the effort to do one's part in the service, the contact with other souls, the joining in the literal sense in prayer—these are some of the things which make actual relationship with the church not only desirable but indispensable. To hold one's self aloof from the church is almost surely an evidence of lack of religion, in the truly Christian sense."

WORLD RELIGIOUS NEWS

The first known organization of American church women was formed in 1807 in a Presbyterian church in New Hampshire and was called the Female Society.

The women were not permitted to handle money, so the minister counted their offering of pennies and made the prayers.

The world's smallest Bible, a book with pages of about one-third the size of an ordinary postage stamp, which when closed is less than one-quarter of an inch thick, is attracting wide attention at the Chicago World's Fair.

It is an exhibit in the South wing of the Hall of Religion. The Bible was printed from plates made under microscopic lens in Glasgow in 1895. Four years were required to make the plates. Shortly after the plates were made, three books were printed. Since that time, one was destroyed by fire and the other lost.

Dean William Ralph Inge of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, will resign his post next summer at the age of 74. He has been dean of St. Paul's since 1911. He expects to spend his retirement in the neighborhood of Oxford.

Dr. Robert M. Hopkins, general secretary of the World's Sunday School association, returned to New York in May after a 3 months' visit in Egypt, Syria, Palestine and Greece. He has reported that Egypt has 600 Sunday schools with an enrollment of 45,750. Palestine and Syria have 185 schools with an enrollment of 18,485 an increase of 150 per cent in ten years.

According to statistics issued by Roger Babson 80 per cent of the business buildings of America are owned by active church members.

75 per cent of bank savings are credited to church people; 76 per cent of our factories are in the hands of religious men and 81 per cent of our farms are owned by men who go to church regularly.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE

Last night was perhaps the most unique service ever held in this city as a class of 25 boys and girls gave a most remarkable demonstration program of Bible knowledge and memory test. They composed the chorus choir for the evening service and led in all the singing of the evening.

People on every hand commented upon the program as being the most interesting and helpful ever witnessed in this city.

Rev. Small spoke briefly extending the invitation of the gospel to which two responded. Yesterday afternoon seven received the ordinance of Christian baptism, and several others will follow in a few days.

LESSON

Lesson for July 30

GIDEON

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 124:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Gideon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Winning Without Swords.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning With a Few.

After forty years of freedom, Israel again passes under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hand of the Midianites. So grievous was their affliction that they hid in dens, caves, and strongholds (Judges 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance. This deliverance was effected through Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon's hesitancy, when called, was due to modesty and caution, and not to unbelief. Before going forward he wished to be doubly sure (Judges 6:36-40). When once he was convinced of duty he was not only courageous, but enthusiastic.

I. The Opposing Army of the Midianites (v. 1).
On that eventful day, Gideon and his army arose early and encamped by the spring of Harod. Over against them was the Midianite host in battle array. Gideon's army was insignificant by comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-8).
At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army of 135,000 strong (Judges 8:10), but God said this was too many lest they be led to self-confidence and boasting. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 warriors in that group of men and, worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. This was still too many. When God was through with his sifting process only 300 remained. The 10,000 were brave men but not of the proper quality and fitness. Those who "lapped" the water showed alertness and caution. If a similar test were made today in our churches and Sunday Schools, would the percentage stand any higher?

III. Encouragement Given to Gideon (vv. 9-15).
God bade Gideon go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. When Gideon came near he heard a man telling a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to the dream which made Gideon to be the cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened him for his work, and caused his heart to burst forth in worshipful praise to God. A barley cake is a very insignificant thing, a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it, it would be successful to spread consternation among the Midianites and even bring destruction upon their armies.

IV. Gideon's Victory (vv. 16-23).
His army was very insignificant and his weapons worthless. His attack was most unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which he had given. God does not ask his servants to go forward without good ground upon which to rest their faith. Gideon formed his 300 men into three companies and provided each man with a trumpet and with a lamp concealed in a pitcher. Thus armed, they surrounded the camp of the Midianites.

Pine Log Relationships
In George Herworth's "Brown Studies" the hero of the story is spending a winter in the Adirondacks. One night he asks the guide to make a fire for him. The fire lasts for a couple of hours and then goes out. While he sits and ponders over the smoldering ashes the guide enters.

"Your fire is nearly out," the man remarks, as though it were some fault of the guide's.

"It was dry pine," he responded. "You know dry pine catches quickly, blazes up quickly, is awfully hot while it lasts, but it goes out very quickly and leaves you in the lurch. Shall I bring in another armful?"

No, John, I am going to bed. Goodnight."

The man sat an hour longer before the flickering embers and pondered over the guide's words, "quick to catch, hot while it lasts and quick to go." The words rang in his ears like a village church-bell tolling for a funeral. How many relationships, he thought, were just like that—friendships—our enthusiasms—our zeal in good causes—our religious zeal. How many pine log relationships there really are and how ineffective.

When we are alone, we have our thoughts to watch; in family, our tempers and in society, our tongues.

Church Forum

What standards should be adapted in the Church School to better the educational qualities of the school?

The answer to this question is given by Professor George H. Betts as follows:

"Two sets of standards of very different levels are at present needed in the attempt to better the educational quality of the school. One of these we might call the standard of educational efficiency, and the other the standard of immediate objectives. The standard of educational efficiency is a standard set by the educational needs of pupils what they require from the church school if they are to make acceptable progress in religious education. And in order to make this standard practical instead of theoretical, we may say that the standard of educational efficiency may be the standards of the public school in so far as they will apply. Teaching, curriculum, program, equipment in church schools are so far below those of the public school and the church has so little of educational consciousness that the public standards cannot immediately be applied to church schools. But they are the best tested standards available."

1. What were the qualities of leadership that Gideon possessed?

2. When is it right that minorities should rule?

3. Name some great results accomplished by minorities?

4. How may the efficiency of leaders be increased?

5. What strategy is permissible in the warfare against sin?

6. How get more church members into active service?

7. What should be our Christian attitude toward war?

Cicero says, "The hope of the world is in its minorities. One of the most arresting statements recently made by a public man was made by Einstein when he said that if two per cent of our population should take a personal resolute stand against the sanction and support of another war, that would end war."

The Church Invites You

THE CHURCH'S CONTRIBUTION

Arthur M. Harris, a prominent religious business man, says, "The church is a necessity for the full development and assistance of the individual believer. It not only furnishes inspiration and assistance it is the very means, almost the sole means by which the individual is redeemed from selfishness. For, in the end, selfishness is at the bottom of neglect to attend church. The giving of one's self, the effort to do one's part in the service, the contact with other souls, the joining in the literal sense in prayer—these are some of the things which make actual relationship with the church not only desirable but indispensable. To hold one's self aloof from the church is almost surely an evidence of lack of religion, in the truly Christian sense."

It has sometimes been said the devil takes no vacation. Well, perhaps that is why he stays a devil. A season of rest and change is helpful to everyone and makes for better workmanship. It is no credit to some men to say I never have taken a vacation. We all need other contacts. We all need some travel to broaden us, to weaken in us an appreciation of the beauty and wonders of the world in which we live. I have seen strong men physically nervous break down because they had not taken a vacation. Then they took one of a year or two. Jesus took his disciples apart for quiet and rest. In life's busy turmoil we need time to find ourselves. A vacation should not mean the neglect of worship—that is injurious. We sometimes worship with other groups and so find a new emphasis of the communion of the saints. We find a oneness of hopes and aims and needs. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend. Go to church on your vacation.

The world's smallest Bible, a book with pages of about one third the size of an ordinary postage stamp, which when closed is less than one quarter of an inch thick, is attracting wide attention at the Chicago World's Fair. It is an exhibit in the South wing of the Hall of Religion. The Bible was printed from plates made under microscopic lens in Glasgow in 1895. Four years were required to make the plates. Shortly after the plates were made, three books were printed. Since that time, one was destroyed by fire and the other lost.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE
Last night was perhaps the most unique service ever held in this city as a class of 25 boys and girls gave a most remarkable demonstration program of Bible knowledge and memory test. They composed the chorus choir for the evening service and led in all the singing of the evening. People on every hand commented upon the program as being the most interesting and helpful ever witnessed in this city.

Rev. Small spoke briefly extending the invitation of the gospel to which two responded. Yesterday afternoon seven received the ordinance of Christian baptism, and several others will follow in a few days.

Tonight the subject will be "Where Did Cain Get His Wife?" Sunday services will be as follows: Bible school at 10 o'clock; preaching at 11. Subject, "Strip and Slain." Christian Endeavor at 7 and evangelistic service at 8. Subject: "For God so Loved the World." Services continue through the week.

Lesson for July 30

GIDEON

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Gideon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Winning Without Swords.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning With a Few.

After forty years of freedom, Israel again passes under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hand of the Midianites. So grievous was their affliction that they hid in dens, caves, and strongholds (Judges 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance. This deliverance was effected through Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon's hesitancy, when called, was due to modesty and caution, and not to unbelief. Before going forward he wished to be doubly sure (Judges 6:36-40). When once he was convinced of duty he was not only courageous, but enthusiastic.

I. The Opposing Army of the Midianites (v. 1).

On that eventful day, Gideon and his army arose early and encamped by the spring of Harod. Over against them was the Midianite host in battle array. Gideon's army was insignificant by comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-8).

At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army of 135,000 strong (Judges 8:10), but God said this was too many lest they be led to self-confidence and boasting. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 warriors in that group of men and, worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. This was still too many. When God was through with his sifting process only 300 remained. The 10,000 were brave men but not of the proper quality and fitness. Those who "lapped" the water showed alertness and caution. If a similar test were made today in our churches and Sunday Schools, would the percentage stand any higher?

III. Encouragement Given to Gideon (vv. 9-15).

God bade Gideon go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. When Gideon came near he heard a man telling a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to the dream which made Gideon to be the cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened his hand for his work, and caused his heart to burst forth in worshipful praise to God. A barley cake is a very insignificant thing, a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it, it would be successful to spread consternation among the Midianites and even bring destruction upon their armies.

IV. Gideon's Victory (vv. 16-23).

His army was very insignificant and his weapons worthless. His attack was most unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which he had given. God does not ask his servants to go forward without good ground upon which to rest their faith. Gideon formed his 300 men into three companies and provided each man with a trumpet and with a lamp concealed in a pitcher. Thus armed, they surrounded the camp of the Midianites.

Book Review

THE WAY by Merrill, The Macmillan Company, consists of daily quotations based on the sayings of Jesus as reported in the Gospels. Dr. Merrill gives for each day a text, a meditation and a prayer which he hopes may make clearer the way of Jesus as a guide for our own life today.

The real calamity of life is to become bitter; to let go; to cease striving; to cease unfolding and growing.

To work is to worship, to be cheery is to pray, to be happy is the first step towards being pious.—Stevenson.

Church Forum

What standards should be adapted in the Church School to better the educational qualities of the school?

The answer to this question is given by Professor George H. Betts as follows:

"Two sets of standards of very different levels are at present needed in the attempt to better the educational quality of the school. One of these we might call the standard of educational efficiency and the other the standard of immediate objectives. The standard of educational efficiency is a standard set by the educational needs of pupils what they require from the church school if they are to make acceptable progress in religious education. And in order to make this standard practical instead of theoretical, we may say that the standard of educational efficiency may be the standards of the public school in so far as they will apply. Teaching, curriculum, program equipment in church schools are so far below those of the public school and the church has so little of educational consciousness that the public standards cannot immediately be applied to church schools. But they are the best tested standards available."

Pine Log Relationships

In George Heworth's "Brown Studies" the hero of the story is spending a winter in the Adirondacks. One night he asks the guide to make a fire for him. The fire lasts for a couple of hours and then goes out. While he sits and ponders over the smoldering ashes the guide enters.

"Your fire is nearly out," the man remarks, as though it were some fault of the guide's.

"It was dry pine," he responded. "You know dry pine catches quickly and goes out quickly, it is awful hot while it lasts, but it goes out very quickly and leaves you in the lurch. Shall I bring in another armful?"

No, John, I am going to bed. Goodnight."

The man sat an hour longer before the flickering embers and pondered over the guide's words, "quick to come, hot while it lasts and quick to go." The words rang in his ears like a village church-bell tolling for a funeral. How many relationships, he thought, were just like that—friendships, enthusiasms, our zest in good causes—our religious zeal. How many pine log relationships there really are and how ineffective.

When we are alone, we have our thoughts to watch; in family, our tempers and in society, our tongues.

WALISA, SINCLAIRS IN 9 TO 9 DEADLOCK

Oil Team Pushes Over Tying
Run In Ninth; Walisas In Early Lead.

The battle for first place in the recreation ball league remained 'as was' today with the Walisa Sluggers and Sinclair Oils playing a torrid 9-9 tie Friday evening.

Despite the fact that numerous errors were committed the game was interesting from start to finish. The Walisas staved off defeat in the last inning when the Oils tied the count. The bases were full and only one out when a hit would have broken up the old ball game.

One run was pushed over the plate but the second was halted by Pitter Eddie Callahan was relieved by Leroy Oliver when the going got tough.

The fray was nip and tuck with the Walisas grabbing a big six run lead in the second inning when Dean White, Oil pitcher, was smacked all over the lot. The Oils kept pecking away at Pud Oliver until the lead was wiped out. The Sinclairs then took the lead but the Sluggers came right back to go ahead by one run.

Then came the ninth inning and the tie game.

It is expected the tie will be played off as soon as possible. At the present time the Walisa are leading the league with the Sinclairs second. Each team has lost but one game while the Walisas have won two more than the Oils.

Friedman and Boyer did the umpiring.

No box scores of the game is available the only thing being kept being the runs.

Lineups were:

Walisa: Wilson lf, Butler rf, Beatty ss, Trimmer lb, Smith 3b, Stevens c, A. Beatty cf, Callahan 2b, p, Oliver p.

Sinclairs: H. White rf, Wefler 3b, Barnes lf, Cline lb, Don White ss, Radcliff cf, Groom 2b, Gordon c, Dean White p.

Red Birds Face Heavy Schedule

COLUMBUS, July 29.—Confronted with nine games during the coming week, the Columbus Red Birds face one of the stiffest seven-day assignment of the season. Starting Sunday at 1:30, the Columbus team will hit Toledo with a double header while Monday, July 31 will bring the St. Louis Cardinals to Columbus for an exhibition game for the benefit of the Columbus Community Fund.

Because of the St. Louis exhibition, a game scheduled with Toledo at Toledo Monday has been moved to Tuesday, August 1, as part of a night double header. The first game will be a twilight affair getting under way at 5:30 p. m. with the second game slated to begin at 8:30. Returning to their own Stadium on West Mount-st after this brief road trip, the Red Birds are given a day of rest Wednesday, but open a series against Milwaukee with a double header Thursday afternoon.

Friday night, the American Legion Baseball Championship of Ohio is to be decided at the Red Bird Stadium at 5:30 p. m., followed by the regularly scheduled Milwaukee's stay here will be concluded with a single game at 3 p. m. Saturday afternoon.

The highlight of the week from a Columbus standpoint will be Friday night. The American Legion adherents in Ohio are bringing along the Franklin Post band consisting of 60 pieces, the Camp Chase Drum Corps of 35 pieces and the Blocc Post Corps of 30 pieces. These three musical organizations will play throughout both the American Legion Championship meet and the Red Birds-Milwaukee game. A special program is being arranged for this double feature.

The news comes from London that Sir Harry Lauder is contemplating a farewell tour of America.

COYOTE POISON BAN

DENVER—Poisoning of coyotes would be made illegal in Colorado, according to a suggestion made to Gov. Ed. C. Johnson recently by Dr. Louis A. Bean, veteran hunter, trapper and lifelong student of Colorado wild life. Dr. Bean asserted that many birds succumbed to the poison. As a result, he declared, trees were overrun with insect pests and were dying by the thousands.

LEE OUTLASTS 'HENS' TO WIN

Staves Off Ninth Inning Rally After Trosky's Homer Makes Game Tough.

Bib Lee staved off a late-game uprising Friday afternoon to defeat the pestiferous Toledo Mud Hens by a 6-5 score. The Birds had a nice lead up to the eighth inning but a home-run by Hal Trosky with two mates on the paths gave Columbus a lead of only 6-4.

The Red Birds with plenty of luck attached to Borgman's pop fly which fell safe near first base chased over a run in the fast of the eighth to make the score 6-4. The Mud Hens drove in a run and had men on first and third with two out when Trosky again came to bat. He smashed a drive in the direction of right field but Mickey Heath stepped in front of it, trumped the first sack and the ball game was over.

Rothrock hit a home run for the Birds in the seventh session.

Ralph Winegarner pitched all the way for Toledo and was touched for 13 hits. Lee gave up 10 and fanned eight men.

The teams met again this afternoon with a double-header on Sunday. Lefty Heise is scheduled for the mound this afternoon with Dean and Winford tossing them over in the Sunday bill.

Minneapolis defeated Milwaukee, 6-5, with the Kels blasting Garland Braxton for his first defeat in seven starts. Joe Hauser hit home run No. 51 and now is only two smashes short of tying Nick Cullop's league record.

SHORT SHATTERS RECORD AT LOGAN

Climaxing his success on the track of Ohio, Harry Short, former local horseman now of Columbus, established a new record at Logan, Friday, in the Hocking-co races.

He drove T. D. Van to victory in three straight heats and shattered the track record of 2:07 1-4 to 2:6 in the 2:15 pace.

The previous record had stood for a long while.

Dover Light Plant Pays

steam engines for reserve, three 254 horsepower Sterling water tube boilers, fired by stokers and operated at 160 pounds gage pressure without superheaters.

The plant is valued at $440,896, has only $41,000 bonds outstanding, has a $180,000 surplus, is providing free street lights for the third year, has paid for $160,000 worth of new equipment out of earnings since 1924, built a $6,500 garage, erected a downtown white way lighting system, and has a $30,000 payroll.

The rates have been cut twice in the last year and are now as follows: First 50 k. w. h. 5 1-2 cents; next 1,450 at 3 cents, next 7,000 at 2 cents, balance at 1 1-2 cents. The rural rate is 10 per cent higher. The minimum charge to residences is 50 cents a month and to business places $1. A 10 per cent penalty is added to bills not paid by the 15th of the month. The city plant furnishes only a part of the industrial power needs for the city.

The Ohio Power Co., which exercises a full franchise in the city, maintains the following domestic and commercial schedule in Dover and the adjacent city of New Philadelphia and surrounding towns: First 30 k. w. h. 7 1-2 cents; next 40 at 4, next 250 at 3, next 1,000 at 2, next 1,500 at 1 1-2, next 40 at 4, next 130 at 3. The Ohio Power commercial rates are: first 200 at 6 1-2 cents; next 200 at 6, next 600 at 5, all over 1,000 at 3.

1932 PRODUCTION HIGH
Despite the depression, the Dover municipal plant produced more kilowatt hours in 1932 than ever before in its history. The total output in 1930 was 3,733,000 k. w. h., in 1931, it was 3,563,000, and in 1932, it was 3,803,000. Meanwhile the economy of the plant has been increasing. In 1930 it required 4,018 pounds of coal to produce a kilowatt. In 1931 this was reduced to 3,893 per k. w. and last year it was cut to 3,523 per k. w.

In a previous article in this series it was pointed out that total taxes of most cities having municipal light plants were higher than Circleville. Dover is a notable exception. The tax rate there in 1931 was $16, the lowest of any city in Ohio. Last year the rate was $16.80, compared to $19.30 for Circleville. This low tax rate can hardly be charged to the fact that the city has a light plant because while the city furnishes free street lights it also loses the taxes on the light plant, the city plant being exempt. The low tax rate seems due to a general prudent administration all around.

The Dover light plant at this time is going through another of those phases of indecision on major policy that constitute one of the dangers and handicaps of municipal ownership. Many friends of the plant believe that council has cut the rates too much and that the capacity of the plant has not been increased sufficiently to keep pace with the increased load.

It has already been noted that the plant includes two turbines and two uniflow engines in reserve, one of 250 k. w. capacity and the other of 160 k. w. capacity. On Jan. 24 of this year, Service Director C. H. Krantz submitted the following report to council:

"The 250 K. W. uniflow engine is in such condition that it should be used only in extreme emergencies. We question the advisability of spending the money necessary to put this engine in safe operating condition. Experience has proven that these two uniflow engines are uneconomical to operate due to their high steam consumption."

"On Dec. 23, 1932, it was necessary to make repairs on the collector ring of the 1500 K. W. turbine causing it to be taken out of service temporarily. During the period this machine was out of operation, the demand on the plant was so large that it was impossible to carry the entire load with the smaller turbine and the 160 K. W. engine. Even with the advantage of a high power factor, which does not always prevail, and operating on a reduced voltage, it became necessary to turn out two street light circuits. At this time the 750 K. W. turbine hauled and was in first class operating condition and carried considerable in excess of its rated capacity. Such performance could hardly be expected of this unit at all times, especially in mid-summer with circulating water at 80 degrees or over. When this trouble occurred, one boiler was off the line for repairs leaving two boilers in operation which were being taxed to their capacity without the addition of the 250 K. W. steam engine unit."

"The continuity of electrical service is daily becoming of greater importance. It is almost impossible to estimate the value of electrical energy to surgeons, doctors, dentists, industrial plants, service station pumps, traffic lights and homes. The interruption of this service not only causes much inconvenience but often entails a financial loss and might possibly cause the loss of life. To insure the continuity of this service to our citizens during break downs or storms, the employees of our light plant frequently place themselves in the position where the slightest mis-step or mistake would end fatally for themselves."

But taxpayers threatened an injunction to prevent expending the light plant surplus at this time,

WALISA, SINCLAIRS IN 9 TO 9 DEADLOCK

Oil Team Pushes Over Tying
Run In Ninth; Walisas In Early Lead.

The battle for first place in the recreation ball league remained 'as was' today with the Walisa Sluggers and Sinclair Oils playing a torrid 9-9 tie Friday evening.

Despite the fact that numerous errors were committed the game was interesting from start to finish. The Walisas staved off defeat in the last inning when the Oils tied the count. The bases were full and only one out when a hit would have broken up the old ball game.

One run was pushed over the plate but the second was halted by Pitcher Eddie Callahan was relieved by Leroy Oliver when the going got tough.

The fray was nip and tuck with the Walisas grabbing a big six run lead in the second inning when Dean White, Oil pitcher, was smacked all over the lot. The Oils kept pecking away at Pud Oliver until the lead was wiped out. The Sinclairs then took the lead but the Sluggers came right back to go ahead by one run.

Then came the ninth inning and the tie game.

It is expected the tie will be played off as soon as possible. At the present time the Walisa are leading the league with the Sinclairs second. Each team has lost but one game while the Walisas have won two more than the Oils.

Friedman and Boyer did the umpiring.

No box scores of the game is available the only thing being kept being the runs.

Lineups were:

Walisa: Wilson lf, Butler rf, Beatty ss, Trimmer lb, Smith 3b, Stevens c, A. Beatty cf, Callahan 2b-p, Oliver p.

Sinclair: H. White rf, Wefler 3b, Barnes lf, Cline lb, Don White ss, Radcliff cf, Groom 2b, Gordon c, Dean White p.

Red Birds Face Heavy Schedule

COLUMBUS, July 29.—Confronted with nine games during the coming week, the Columbus Red Birds face one of the stiffest seven-day assignments of the season.

Starting Sunday at 1:30, the Columbus team will tie into Toledo with a double header while Monday, July 31 will bring the St. Louis Cardinals to Columbus for an exhibition game for the benefit of the Columbus Community Fund.

Because of the St. Louis exhibition, a game scheduled with Toledo at Toledo Monday has been moved to Tuesday, August 1, as part of a night double header. The first game will be a twilight affair getting under way at 5:30 p. m. with the second game slated to begin at 8:30. Returning to their own Stadium on West Mound-st after this brief road trip, the Red Birds are given a day of rest Wednesday, but open a series against Milwaukee with a double header Thursday afternoon.

Friday night, the American Legion Baseball Championship of Ohio is to be decided at the Red Bird Stadium at 5:30 p. m., followed by the regularly scheduled Milwaukee's stay here will be concluded with a single game at 3 p. m. Saturday afternoon.

The highlight of the week from a Columbus standpoint will be Friday night. The American Legion adherents in Ohio are bringing along the Franklin Post band consisting of 60 pieces, the Camp Chase Drum Corps of 35 pieces and the Blocc Post Corps of 30 pieces. These three musical organizations will play throughout both the American Legion Championship game and the Red Birds-Milwaukee game. A special program is being arranged for this double feature.

The news comes from London that Sir Harry Lauder is contemplating a farewell farewell tour of America.

COYOTE POISON BAN

DENVER—Poisoning of coyotes would be made illegal in Colorado, according to a suggestion made to Gov. Ed. C. Johnson recently by Dr. Louis A. Bean, veteran hunter, trapper and lifelong student of Colorado wild life. Dr. Bean asserted that many birds succumbed to the poison. As a result, he declared, trees were overrun with insect pests and were dying by the thousands.

LEE OUTLASTS 'HENS' TO WIN

Staves Off Ninth Inning Rally After Trosky's Homer Makes Game Tough.

Bib Bill Lee staved off a late-game uprising Friday afternoon to defeat the pestiferous Toledo Mud Hens by a 6-5 score. The Birds had a nice lead up to the eighth inning but a home run by Hal Trosky with two mates on the paths gave Columbus a lead of only 6-4.

The Red Birds with plenty of luck attached to Borgman's pop fly which fell safe near first base chased over a run in the last of the eighth to make the score 6-4. The Mud Hens drove in a run and had men on first and third with two out when Trosky again came to bat. He smashed a drive in the direction of right field but Mickey Heath stepped in front of it, tramped the first sack and the ball game was over.

Rothrock hit a home run for the Birds in the seventh session. Ralph Winegarner pitched all the way for Toledo and was touched for 13 hits. Lee gave up 10 and fanned eight men.

The teams met again this afternoon with a double-header on Sunday. Lefty Heise is scheduled for the mound this afternoon with Dean and Winford tossing them over in the Sunday bill. Minneapolis defeated Milwaukee, 6-5, with the Kels blasting Garland Braxton for his first defeat in seven starts. Joe Hauser hit home run No. 51 and now is only two smashes short of tying Nick Cullop's league record.

SHORT SHATTERS RECORD AT LOGAN

Climaxing his success on the track of Ohio, Harry Short, former local horseman now of Columbus, established a new record at Logan, Friday, in the Hocking-co races.

He drove T. D. Van to victory in three straight heats and shattered the track record of 2:07 1-4 to 2:6 in the 2:15 pace.

The previous record had stood for a long while.

Pennsylvania Exports

WASHINGTON — Exports of merchandise from Pennsylvania during 1932 were valued at $100,425,070 compared with $180,233,528 in 1931. The state ranked fourth among the states in value of exports last year following California with exports of $149,200,991 and directly preceding Louisiana with foreign shipments totaling $80,668,242.

steam engines for reserve, three 354 horsepower Sterling water tube boilers, fired by stokers and operated at 160 pounds gage pressure without superheat.

The plant is valued at $440,806, has only $41,000 bonds outstanding, has a $180,000 surplus, is providing free street lights for the third year, has paid for $160,000 worth of new equipment out of earnings since 1924, built a $6,500 garage, erected a downtown white way lighting system, and has a $30,000 payroll.

The rates have been cut twice in the last year and are now as follows: First 50 k. w. h. 5 1-2 cents; next 1,450 at 3 cents, next 7,000 at 2 cents, balance at 1 1-2 cents. The rural rate is 10 per cent higher. The minimum charge to residences is 50 cents a month and to business places $1. A 10 per cent penalty is added to bills not paid by the 15th of the month. The city plant furnishes only a part of the industrial power needs for the city.

The Ohio Power Co., which exercises a full franchise in the city, maintains the following domestic and commercial schedule in Dover and the adjacent city of New Philadelphia and surrounding towns: First 30 k. w. h. 7 1-2 cents; next 40 at 4, next 230 at 3. Water heater rates: First 30 at 7 1-2, next 40 at 4, next 130 at 3.

The Ohio Power commercial rates are: first 200 at 6 1-2 cents; next 200 at 6, next 600 at 5, all over 1,000 at 3.

1932 PRODUCTION HIGH

Despite the depression, the Dover municipal plant produced more kilowatt hours in 1932 than ever before in its history. The total output in 1932 was 3,733,000 k. w. h., in 1931 it was 3,562,000 and in 1932 it was 3,803,000. Meanwhile the economy of the plant has been increasing. In 1930 it required 4,018 pounds of coal to produce a kilowatt. In 1931 this was reduced to 3,893 per k. w. and last year it was cut to 3,523 per k. w.

In a previous article in this series it was pointed out that total taxes of most cities having municipal light plants were higher than Circleville. Dover is a notable exception. The tax rate there in 1931 was $16, the lowest of any city in Ohio. Last year the rate was $16.80, compared to $19.30 for Circleville. This low tax rate can hardly be charged to the fact that the city has a light plant because while the city furnishes free street lights it also loses the taxes on the light plant, the city plant being exempt. The low tax rate seems due to a general prudent administration all around.

The Dover light plant at this time is going through another of those phases of indecision on major policy that constitute one of the dangers and handicaps of municipal ownership. Many friends of the plant believe that council has cut the rates too much and that the capacity of the plant has not been increased sufficiently to keep pace with the increased load.

It has already been noted that the plant includes two turbines and two uniflow engines in reserve, one of 250 k. w. capacity and the other of 160 k. w. capacity. On Jan. 24 of this year, Service Director C. H. Krantz submitted the following report to council:

COUNCIL HEARS REPORT

"The 250 K. W. uniflow engine is in such condition that it should be used only in extreme emergencies. We question the advisability of spending the money necessary to put this engine in safe operating condition. Experience has proven that these two uniflow engines are uneconomical to operate due to their high steam consumption."

"On Dec. 23, 1932, it was necessary to make repairs on the collector ring of the 1500 K. W. turbine causing it to be taken out of service temporarily. During the period this machine was out of operation, the demand on the plant was so large that it was impossible to carry the entire load with the smaller turbine and the 160 K. W. engine. Even with the advantage of a high power factor, which does not always prevail, and operating on a reduced voltage, it became necessary to turn out two street light circuits. At this time the 750 K. W. turbine had recently been thoroughly overhauled and was in first class operating condition and carried considerable in excess of its rated capacity. Such performance could hardly be expected of this unit at all times, especially in mid-summer with circulating water at 80 degrees or over. When this trouble occurred, one boiler was off the line for repairs leaving two boilers in operation which were being taxed to their capacity without the addition of the 250 K. W. steam engine unit."

"The continuity of electrical service is daily becoming of greater importance. It is almost impossible to estimate the value of electrical energy to surgeons, doctors, dentists, industrial plants, service station pumps, traffic lights and homes. The interruption of this service not only causes much inconvenience but often entails a financial loss and might possibly cause the loss of life. To insure the continuity of this service to our citizens during break downs or storms, the employees of our light plant frequently place themselves in the position where the slightest misstep or mistake would end fatally for themselves."

But taxpayers threatened an injunction to prevent expending the light plant surplus at this time, because they said the power demand would drop on account of unemployment and industrial paralysis. Council was bluffed out of acting but the power demand is still going up and in June, this year, the output was the largest for any summer month in the history of the plant. Thus the plant goes into next winter when short days will cause the daytime factory and commercial power load to overlap on the heavy night store and home lighting load and put the plant at a peak load which it cannot carry if anything happens to one of the operating units. If a privately-owned utility would be caught in this predicament it would doubtless be severely criticized by the public.

In regard to the lowering of rates it must be remembered that the $180,000 surplus the plant now holds was built up under higher rates. Even before the last reduction the revenue per k. w. hour had decreased from 5.22 cents in 1925 to 2.81 cents in 1932. Under the free street lighting system the consumption for this purpose in 1932 showed an increase over 1931 of 6,300 k. w. hours.

The Worst Fault

By IRVIN S. COBB

AFTER a twenty years' absence a gentleman returned to the little New England town where he had been born. In the neighborhood in which he had been reared he found but one of the original residents remaining, an elderly Irish lady. He made himself known to her, and she welcomed him back home again, and promptly they fell to talking of boys and girls with whom he had grown up. This one, she told him, had turned out badly. That one had turned out well. Some were dead. Some had moved away. Finally he asked:

"Tell me, Mrs. Daly, what ever became of poor little Jimmy McKenna who used to live in the shanty right down the street here?"

"Poor, is it?" echoed Mrs. Daly. "Poor nothin'! Jimmy McKenna had no schoolin' as you may remember, but when he grew up he got into the truckin' business and from that he turned to contractin', and though he couldn't read and write, he made a million."

"Bully!" said the returned one. "And where is he now?"

"As to that," said Mrs. Daly, "I couldn't say, I hope, though, that he's in heaven. You see, sir, here about two years ago, Jimmy went down to the gravel pit where some of the byes was in swimmin' and it bein' a warm day, he took off his clothes and waded in, and he waded out too far and he got over his head and was drowned."

"Oh, that's too bad," said the visitor. "To think of a boy who had no better start than Jim McKenna had, doing so well in the world, and then meeting an end like that! And he made a million, you say?"

"No," said Mrs. Daly, "nor swim."

financial difficulty although it has little cash balance and an $80,000 bonded debt. The system was never metered and the flat rate schedule in effect costs the average six-room home owner about $12 a year. Water is consumed at times in large quantities. Thus on a hot day last June the 9,716 inhabitants of this city consumed over 3,000,000 gallons of water in a single day, or over 300 gallons per capita. The water pumps are operated by current and steam from the light plant and maintain adequate pressure and fire protection which give the city a low insurance rate.

Beauty Contests

THIS has proved a great season for beauty contests, and the end is not yet. The picture section of almost every Sunday paper is decorated with pictures of prize-winning beauties. And few are the week-day issues that are not generously sprinkled with cuts of aspirants to coveted first-place distinction.

While average male readers will be disposed to concede that all such fair claimants to exceptional pulchritude are restful to the eye and worth a lingering look, few of them will be inclined to admit that the lovely faces at which they look are near as lovely as certain faces that they carry photographed in their hearts. To almost every man one woman is more beautiful than all others. She may not have perfect features. Her coloring may be far from exquisite. Her hair may not be up to date. But, to him, she is beyond compare. Therefore average men are unwilling to take the opinion of mere judges as to relative merit of the claims of beauty contestants of superiority. They are pretty enough, but as for being the most beautiful—well, the average man, being gallant by nature, would prefer not to say.

And there is the average woman. Can the aspirants to beauty honors, or the winners of them, for that matter, except to get by that critic? Not much. What average woman would grant that the gleaming beauties who smile at them from pictured pages are unsurpassable? Not one. This critic might concede that the prize winners are fair—except for blemishes from which the average woman who is doing the talking thinks she is free. Of course, of course, the average woman also confuses judgment on this matter. Would any dweller on the Atlantic seaboard concede that the prize-winning beauties of Pacific slope surpass those of the East? Of course not. Would inhabitants of Podunk grant that the blue-ribbon beauty of Washington outshines any one of a dozen maidens in their home-town? And, again, of course, not. Beauty contests may be counted on to bring out an array of beautiful maidens that would gladden the heart of any average man and will that of the average woman with something approaching envy. But as for the deciding anything—well, hardly.

Remember when a fellow had the nerve to ask the boss for a raise?

Morality Is Relative

IF A CANVASS of theatergoers were made 999 out of every 1,000 would say that he is opposed to immoral, and obscene plays, but no two out of 1,000 would agree on what constitutes an immoral and obscene play. Most people are moral except to those whose definition for morality is a mite more restrictive.

Not infrequently modern America is accused of drinking the dregs of immorality. And yet, a critic of the British theater says that some of the plays which have so shocked some Americans are considered dull by the English theatergoer. In the eyes of the European the people of the United States are a nation of puritans. It seems that the American people are considered naughty only by their compatriots.

Time changes the lens of the glasses of immorality. Twenty years ago the plays of Ibsen caused more blushes than any of the New York plays now being shadowed by the Purity League, but today those same plays of Ibsen are presented by college and high school dramatic clubs under faculty direction. Samuel Pepys in the early seventeenth century burned his French novels after reading them and those same novels today grace the best American homes. The modern two-piece bathing suit would have thrown its fair wearer into jail a decade ago but today it is prescribed by the beach censors.

There is no escape from some people. The fastest airplane still travels slightly lower than sound.

Vacation Scenes: One Man Show

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXVI

At noon he came home. He had a sore throat and a headache, he said. His hands were hot and dry and his gray eyes glittered with fever. As she helped him off with his clothes Mary Faith observed that he had bought himself a new shirt and a new blue and white polka-dotted tie. He had been wearing polka-dotted ties exclusively the last few weeks. Evidently the blond girl in the drug store admired polka dots.

"The things a wife finds out about the woman her husband cares for!" Mary Faith thought bitterly as she closed the top drawer of Kim's dresser upon the tie.

Mary Faith's indignation vanished when she saw that he was sick.

"Oh, gosh, but I'm glad to be here," he sighed as she helped him to bed. "No place like this, Mary Faith."

She went out into the hall and telephoned Dr. Thatcher.

"Kim's sick," she told Mrs. Farrell, who was just coming in from a trip to the library, bringing four books and a box of licorice drops. "I've telephoned for the doctor. It's best to be on the safe side."

"Oh, absolutely!" agreed Mrs. Farrell. She was all agog at the thought of seeing Dr. Thatcher. By the time the doctor arrived, she had changed into a clean house dress and had established herself in a chair at Kim's bedside, where she sat looking much too large for the small neat room.

"Well, doctor, what's wrong with our boy? Just a little touch of sore throat, I imagine," she said comfortingly, when Dr. Thatcher had gone over Kim's chest with a stethoscope. "He's always having a sore throat, you know."

But Dr. Thatcher said it was not sore throat this time, but acute bronchitis. He looked gravely at Mary Faith when he said it.

"Keep the room warm and open the windows from the top, so that there'll be plenty of fresh air, Mrs. Kim. And don't let this fellow smoke or have anything but water and broth and orange juice. I'll send up some medicine."

His orders sounded simple enough, but Mary Faith found them anything but simple to carry out. For Mrs. Farrell opposed her at every turn. When Mary Faith opened the windows from the top, she closed them.

"Who ever heard of letting cold air blow in on a sick person?" she wanted to know. And she was all for giving Kim a sweet thick eggnog, instead of orange juice.

"An eggnog never hurt anybody," she declared and went on mixing one in a tall glass. "Besides Dr. Thatcher used to order them for Kimberly when he was a little boy."

need some air and exercise. I won't be gone ten minutes."

She leaned over him to kiss him.

"You've been an awfully good patient, Kim."

He caught her hands and held them tight. "I've been a rotten husband for the last month or so, Mary Faith. I've worried you. I'm sorry."

That was all he said, but Mary Faith knew that it meant a great deal, coming from Kim, who hardly ever admitted that he had been in the wrong about anything; and her heart was as light as the dry leaves that danced along the sidewalks ahead of her as she walked briskly around the block.

There was a light in the vestibule of the building when she came back, and just outside the door of her own apartment stood a slim, young woman in a gray squirrel coat. She swung round as Mary Faith appeared.

"Mary Faith Farrell!"

It was Claire Maldon, thinner than ever, more shrill of voice, her face more thickly covered with powder and rouge and lipstick.

"Or perhaps she just strikes me as being like that because I haven't seen her in such a long time," mused Mary Faith.

The sitting room was very quiet and orderly in the twilight. The red coals glowed in the grate and the rose-geraniums on the window sill filled the place with their warm, spicy perfume.

"Jack tells me that Sandy's been sick," Claire said, throwing her coat back on her shoulders and lighting the cigarette that seemed to be as much a part of her as the red salve on her lips or the enamel on her finger nails.

Mary Faith nodded. "He has. I'll go back now, if you'll excuse me, and see if he's all right. Sit down and make yourself comfy, Claire."

"Ask him if he's too sick to see an old friend for a minute," Claire's voice floated after her as she went softly through the dark dining-room. "I'd certainly like to say 'hello' to him."

"That's what she came here for," thought Mary Faith. When she returned to the sitting room, Claire had turned on the lights. She had taken off her hat and was standing before the mirror, touching the yellow waves of her hair with a pocket comb.

"May I see him?"

"He's asleep."

Claire shrugged her slender shoulders and flopped into Kim's chair. "So was Jack when I started over here," she said. "I left him snoring in his chair. You know that we had been separated these last three or four months, didn't you?"

Her keen eyes studied Mary Faith fixedly through a haze of cigarette smoke.

"You look awfully tired and old," she said suddenly before Mary Faith had had time to answer her. "You're a fool to stay at home all the time and shave the way you do. I know Sandy's been sick, and I know you have a baby to look after, but you ought to think of yourself first of all. The more selfish a woman is the more a man thinks of her. You probably don't believe that but you will before you die."

Then she went on talking about herself and Jack.

"I only came back home to see if I can stand living with Jack again. I'm going to try it for a month or so and if I don't get along with him better than I have in the past, I'm going to divorce him. You think I'm dreading to say that, don't you, Mary Faith?"

Mary Faith moved uneasily in her chair, not knowing what to say. "I always thought you and Jack got along very well," was what she finally managed to blurt out.

"All of our friends thought that. All but Sandy. He lived in the same house with us and he knew that we didn't get along at all." A little smile slid across Claire's face, as if a pleasant thought had come into her mind.

"Sandy's like me, Mary Faith. He likes plenty of zippo all the time. And Jack's your kind of person. He actually likes to stay at home and read or putter around. If things in this crazy world were arranged the way they ought to be arranged, you'd have married Jack, Mary Faith, and I'd be Sandy's little better half."

She laughed as if she had just cracked a splendid joke, and Mary Faith smiled at her as if she saw the joke and thought it mildly funny, too. But she didn't think it was funny at all.

"How could she even think such a beastly thing?" she asked herself as Claire went away, calling over her shoulder that they must all spend New Year's Eve together, and that she hoped Sandy would soon be better, and that Mary Faith must be sure to tell him that she had come to see him while he slept.

"I thought I heard that Maldon woman in here—that's why I didn't come in," said Mrs. Farrell from the doorway of the dining-room as soon as the door had closed upon Claire. "Oh, what a voice she has! And the way she runs on about Kimberly! She's in love with him, mark my words! I've said so before and I say so again."

Mary Faith hardly thought of Claire in the next few weeks. Aunt Ella came up from Garrettville to do her Christmas shopping, and Mary Faith went with her on two snowy afternoons, bringing home packages and an armful of evergreens and holly on each occasion.

Mr. McIntire had turned over a very important case to Kim—a case that had to do with the breaking of a will. Kim worked and worried over it, and two or three times he telephoned Mary Faith that he wouldn't be home for dinner, and that if she wanted him, he would be at the office.

"Don't call me unless it's necessary," he said. "And if I'm not here, it's because I'm either on my way home or having something to eat in a restaurant—alone. Alone, do you understand?"

"Oh, Kim, don't rub it into me that I'm a jealous, suspicious wife. You know I trust you even if I am jealous."

She did. She never called up the office on the nights when he was not at home.

Christmas was a complete success. A regular story-book snowstorm had wrapped Wilton Street in the whiteness of a wedding veil. The flat was warm and fragrant with the odor of holly and fir and roast goose. The baby stood on his little feet for the first time to touch the shining blown-glass ornaments on his Christmas tree. Aunt Ella had stayed for the holidays, and Dr. Thatcher came to the family dinner at four o'clock.

Dodgers of Gold Embargo Now Sending Millions Weekly to Europe

WASHINGTON—The flight of the American dollar to Europe continues at the rate of about $30,000,000 a week, according to unofficial but reasonably accurate estimates reaching the Capital from New York. To beat Roosevelt's embargo on gold dollars is proving easy for those who buy Dutch, French, Swiss, or other sound foreign bonds, mail them abroad, sell them there, and deposit the money in a foreign bank. It's surprising how many "patriots" are doing this. An indication that the official champagne parties of pre-prohibition will soon be back occurred at the Pan-American Union this week. Champagne, cocktails and a regal assortment of beverages was served in honor of the birthday of Simon Bolivar, Latin America's George Washington. It has always been permissible to serve liquor in the Pan-American Union, since it belongs to all the Americans, but in deference to the United States Latin Americans heretofore have refrained.

Deadlier Than the Male

Dwight Davis, donor of the famed tennis cup and ex-governor of the Philippines, has taken a house in Washington to watch the New Deal next winter. The house belongs to Roosevelt's first cousin, Warren Delano Robbins, now Minister to Canada. Lady Perkins is not as good an executive as she was cracked up to be. Her Labor Department has had a hard time getting organized. But there is one thing about her which everyone has come to recognize. She is a knock-down-drag-out fighter, and she

Balanced Diet Is Urged In Curing This Ailment

Doctor Declares Condition Should Never Be Neglected; Gives Simple Rules

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States senator from New York
 Former Commissioner of Health,
 New York City

DO YOU know that the name "halitosis" comes from the Latin word "halitus," meaning breath? Within recent years this has become a familiar word used in the daily vocabulary of everybody. As we understand it, it means an abnormal, maledorous state of the breath.

No one will deny that halitosis is a dreadful affliction. Its prevention is far easier than its cure.

This disability can be traced to several disturbances of the mouth and intestinal tract. Many persons believe it is only caused by neglect of the teeth. This is not true.

Infected and neglected teeth and gums are frequent cause of bad breath, of course. But it can also be traced to diseased tonsils, infected nasal sinuses, and inflammation of any part of the digestive tract. Diseases of the mouth, tongue, esophagus or "rood pipe" are causes that must not be overlooked.

An Unhealthy Condition

I need not tell you, of course, that under no circumstances is it advisable to neglect halitosis. It is an annoying and distressing affliction often overlooked by the victim. Bear in mind that it is not a disease. It is a symptom which results from an unhealthy condition. It is nature's sign of warning and should not be neglected.

Few people brush their teeth properly. Neglect of this simple duty allows food particles to accumulate between the teeth, in cavities of the teeth and beneath faulty and defective bridge work. Decomposition of this material gives rise to unpleasant odors.

Keep in mind that by simply brushing the teeth in any fashion and occasionally using a mouth gargle will not prevent this undesirable affliction. The teeth must be brushed up and down with a stiff bristle brush. Use dental floss between the teeth. This removes putrefactive food particles and undigested morsels of food that give off offensive odors. Many a person has a rough tongue, capable of holding food particles. The heavy coating decomposes and causes an unpleasant odor. Gently scraping the tongue will overcome this.

Faulty Eating Habits

Frequently halitosis may be due to faulty eating habits, improper diet, indigestion or constipation. When halitosis persists in spite of proper care of the teeth and gums, a physical examination by a physician is recommended. If necessary, X-ray pictures of the stomach and intestines should be taken.

May I impress upon you the importance of a well balanced diet. Include plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. Chew your food slowly and carefully. Never hurry through a meal. Meals should be eaten at a definite time each day. Drink from six to eight glasses of water a day. A daily elimination is imperative. If necessary, a daily enema or regular doses of mineral oil, should be taken.

As I have mentioned, halitosis is not a disease. It is merely a symptom or sign of some disturbance that requires attention. Do not neglect it.

is not afraid to go to the mat to a fare-thee-well with her chief in the White House when she is convinced she is right. "Old Doc" Hubert Work, of Colorado, Hoover's first campaign manager, has gone to the White Mountains. So have Senator and Mrs. Costigan, also of Colorado.

Departing

Administration leaders intimate privately that "Seaboard Bill" Stevenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Board, is on the skids. The White House apparently is not satisfied with the way things are going in this part of the recovery program. Stevenson has been "called" on the White House mat for embarrassing statements he has given to the press. One of these, to the effect that Republicans would not be given places in the Home Loan organization stirred such a rumpus that Stevenson called a conference of the reporters and sought to make them retreat. They stuck by the stenographic record of his remarks. Stevenson's practice of naming important officials in the organization without first consulting Administration chiefs also got him into hot water.

Exit "Neera"

NRA, the new designation for the National Industrial Recovery Administration, is the brain child of General Hugh Johnson. He didn't like the original NIRA, which everyone was soon pronouncing as "Neera." General Wolravens, new attaché of the Belgian Embassy, is one of the best amateur swimmers in Belgium. Falk Konitz, Mohammedan Minister of Albania, has been hounded by ladies who want him to get an Albanian woman to attend their feminist convention in Chicago. After incessant requests, equally numerous turn-downs, and continued demands as to why Albania could not send a representative, the Minister's patience snapped. "My dear Madame," he finally told one lady, "the women of my country are too occupied in taking care of their homes, husbands and babies to bother about feminist conventions."

Balbo Reciprocity

General Balbo's race transatlantic flight has fired Navy aeronautical chiefs with a similar idea. They have already started talking about the desirability of sending an American air squadron to Europe. One hurried in the way is the cost. Balbo told Navy men here that the Italian junket cost over $1,000,000 plus $2,000,000 shot-ats.

for the planes. With the Treasury in the red it is hardly likely that the President would approve such an outlay. Thomas Eliot, newly appointed counsel in the Solicitor's office of the Department of Labor, is a grandson of Charles W. Eliot, late President of Harvard. Of the 12 billion dollars in home mortgages that are eligible to federal aid under the Home Loan Act, $6,450,000,000 are held by building and loan associations, $3,500,000,000 by savings banks, and only $2,000,000,000 by insurance companies.

Capital Sunning

Nudism has come to Washington, but in a restrained form. Mrs. Alice M. Capron, 56-year-old physical culturist and dietitian of the League of the Larger Life, has opened a camp on a secluded beach on the Chesapeake Bay, where capital residents may take the "sun-cure" but not in mixed company. Mrs. Capron does not approve of "co-ed" nudism. At her camp men and women are separated by a fallen tree trunk. William S. Orthon, new chief of police of the Capital building and grounds, is a veteran of the Chicago police force. He served for many years there as a patrolman and detective sergeant. He was retired recently, owes his Washington appointment to Senator J. "Ham" Lewis of Illinois. One of President Roosevelt's most favorite fruits is the grape; he often has a bunch on his desk and munches them as he works. F. D. R. does not care for candy. Mrs. Roosevelt, on the other hand, does. All the Deputy Administrators of the NRA are giving their services without cost to the government. They are all either wealthy men of independent means or are being "loaned" to the government by their organizations. General Johnson selects them on the basis of personal knowledge of their qualifications.

Girl Scout News

The Logan Elm Girl Scout troop No. 1 met for its regular session at the home of the late Mrs. Rose Borja in Pickaway-twp. We formed a horseshoe and made plans for the month of August. Several of the girls then enjoyed a swim in the creek, while others passed their first and second class tests.

We adjourned to meet August 2 at the Pickaway-twp school.

While average male readers will be disposed to concede that all such fair claimants to exceptional pulchritude are restful to the eye and worth a lingering look, few of them will be inclined to admit that the lovely faces at which they look are near as lovely as certain faces that they carry photographed in their hearts. To almost every man one woman is more beautiful than all others. She may not have perfect features. Her coloring may be far from exquisite. Her hair may not be up to date. But, to him, she is beyond compare. Therefore average men are unwilling to take the opinion of mere judges as to relative merit of the claims of beauty contestants of superiority. They are pretty enough, but as for being the most beautiful—well, the average man, being gallant by nature, would prefer not to say.

And there is the average woman. Can the aspirants to beauty honors, or the winners of them, for that matter, except to get by that critic? Not much. What average woman would grant that the gleaming beauties who smile at them from pictured pages are unsurpassable? Not one. This critic might concede that the prize winners are fair—except for blemishes from which the average woman who is doing the talking thinks she is free.

Pride of locality also confuses judgment on this matter. Would any dweller on the Atlantic seaboard concede that the prize-winning beauties of Pacific slope surpass those of the East? Of course not. Would inhabitants of Podunk grant that the blue-ribbon beauty of Washington outshines any one of a dozen maidens in their home-town? And, again, of course not. Beauty contests may be counted on to bring up an array of beautiful maidens that would gladden the heart of any average man and will that of the average woman with something approaching envy. But as for the deciding anything—well, hardly.

Remember when a fellow had the nerve to ask the boss for a raise?

Morality Is Relative

IF A CANVASS of theatergoers were made 999 out of every 1,000 would say that he is opposed to immoral and obscene plays, but no two out of 1,000 would agree on what constitutes an immoral and obscene play. Most people are moral except to those whose definition for morality is a mite more restrictive.

Not infrequently modern America is accused of drinking the dregs of immorality. And yet, a critic of the British theater says that some of the plays which have so shocked some Americans are considered dull by the English theatergoer. In the eyes of the European the people of the United States are a nation of puritans. It seems that the American people are considered naughty only by their compatriots.

Time changes the lens of the glasses of immorality. Twenty years ago the plays of Ibsen caused more blushes than any of the New York plays now being shadowed by the Purity League, but today those same plays of Ibsen are presented by college and high school dramatic clubs under faculty direction. Samuel Pepys in the early seventeenth century burned his French novels after reading them and those same novels today grace the best American homes. The modern two-piece bathing suit would have thrown its fair wearer into jail a decade ago but today it is prescribed by the beach censors.

There is no escape from some people. The fastest airplane still travels slightly lower than sound.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXVI

At noon he came home. He had a sore throat and a headache, he said. His hands were hot and dry and his gray eyes glittered with fever.

As she helped him off with his clothes Mary Faith observed that he had bought himself a new shirt and a new blue and white polka-dotted tie. He had been wearing polka-dotted ties exclusively the last few weeks. Evidently the blond girl in the drug store admired polka dots.

"The things a wife finds out about the woman her husband cares for!" Mary Faith thought bitterly as she closed the top drawer of Kim's dresser upon the tie.

Mary Faith's indignation vanished when she saw that he was sick.

"Oh, gosh, but I'm glad to be here," he sighed as she helped him to bed. "No place like this, Mary Faith."

She went out into the hall and telephoned Dr. Thatcher.

"Kim's sick," she told Mrs. Farrell, who was just coming in from a trip to the library, bringing four books and a box of licorice drops. "I've telephoned for the doctor. It's best to be on the safe side."

"Oh, absolutely!" agreed Mrs. Farrell. She was all agog at the thought of seeing Dr. Thatcher. By the time the doctor arrived, she had changed into a clean house dress and had established herself in a chair at Kim's bedside, where she sat looking much too large for the small neat room.

"Well, doctor, what's wrong with our boy? Just a little touch of sore throat, I imagine," she said comfortingly, when Dr. Thatcher had gone over Kim's chest with a stethoscope. "He's always having a sore throat, you know."

But Dr. Thatcher said it was not sore throat this time, but acute bronchitis. He looked gravely at Mary Faith when he said it.

"Keep the room warm and open the windows from the top, so that there'll be plenty of fresh air, Mrs. Kim. And don't let this fellow smoke or have anything but water and broth and orange juice. I'll send up some medicine."

His orders sounded simple enough, but Mary Faith found them anything but simple to carry out. For Mrs. Farrell opposed her at every turn. When Mary Faith opened the windows from the top, she closed them.

"Who ever heard of letting cold air blow in on a sick person?" she wanted to know. And she was all for giving Kim a sweet thick egg-nog, instead of orange juice.

"An egg-nog never hurt anybody," she declared and went on mixing one in a tall glass. "Besides Dr. Thatcher used to order them for Kimberley when he was a little boy."

"That was twenty years ago and doctors have changed their ideas of diet and treatments since then," Mary Faith pointed out. But she might have saved her breath, for Mrs. Farrell paid no attention to her.

And so things went on for a week, with Mary Faith doing her best to carry out the doctor's orders and Mrs. Farrell doing her best to thwart her at every turn. But at the end of the week, in spite of all this, Kim was better. He got up for Sunday dinner and afterward sat before the fire and read the papers, until four o'clock.

"I'm going to run around the block," Mary Faith told him. "I need some air and exercise. I won't be gone ten minutes."

She leaned over him to kiss him. "You've been an awfully good patient, Kim."

He caught her hands and held them tight. "I've been a rotten husband for the last month or so, Mary Faith. I've worried you. I'm sorry."

That was all he said, but Mary Faith knew that it meant a great deal, coming from Kim, who hardly ever admitted that he had been in the wrong about anything; and her heart was as light as the dry leaves that danced along the sidewalks ahead of her as she walked briskly around the block.

There was a light in the vestibule of the building when she came back, and just outside the door of her own apartment stood a slim, young woman in a gray squirrel coat. She swung 'round as Mary Faith appeared.

"Mary Faith Farrell!" It was Claire Maldon, thinner than ever, more shrill of voice, her face more thickly covered with powder and rouge and lipstick.

"Or perhaps she just strikes me as being like that because I haven't seen her in such a long time," mused Mary Faith.

The sitting room was very quiet and orderly in the twilight. The red coals glowed in the grate and the rose-geraniums on the window sill filled the place with their warm, spicy perfume.

"Jack tells me that Sandy's been sick," Claire said, throwing her coat back on her shoulders and lighting the cigarette that seemed to be as much a part of her as the red salve on her lips or the enamel on her finger-nails.

Mary Faith nodded. "He has. I'll go back now, if you'll excuse me, and see if he's all right. Sit down and make yourself comfy, Claire."

"Ask him if he's too sick to see an old friend for a minute," Claire's voice floated after her as she went softly through the dark dining-room. "I'd certainly like to say 'hello' to him."

"That's what she came here for," thought Mary Faith. When she returned to the sitting room, Claire had turned on the lights. She had taken off her hat and was standing before the mirror, touching the yellow waves of her hair with a pocket comb.

"May I see him?"

"He's asleep," Claire shrugged her slender shoulders and flopped into Kim's chair. "So was Jack when I started over here," she said. "I left him snoring in his chair. You know that we had been separated these last three or four months, didn't you?"

Her keen eyes studied Mary Faith fixedly through a haze of cigarette smoke.

"You look awfully tired and old," she said suddenly before Mary Faith had had time to answer her. "You're a fool to stay at home all the time and slave the way you do. I know Sandy's been sick, and I know you ought to think of yourself first of all. The more selfish a woman is the more a man thinks of her. You probably don't believe that but you will before you die."

Then she went on talking about herself and Jack.

"I only came back home to see if I can stand living with Jack again. I'm going to try it for a month or so and if I don't get along with him better than I have in the past, I'm going to divorce him. You think I'm dreadful to say that, don't you, Mary Faith?"

Mary Faith moved uneasily in her chair, not knowing what to say. "I always thought you and Jack got along very well," was what she finally managed to blurt out.

"All of our friends thought that. All but Sandy. He lived in the same house with us and he knew that we didn't get along at all." A little smile slid across Claire's face, as if a pleasant thought had come into her mind.

"Sandy's like me, Mary Faith. He likes plenty of zippo all the time. And Jack's your kind of person. He actually likes to stay at home and read or putter around. If things in this crazy world were arranged the way they ought to be arranged, you'd have married Jack, Mary Faith, and I'd be Sandy's little better half."

She laughed as if she had just cracked a splendid joke, and Mary Faith smiled at her as if she saw the joke and thought it mildly funny, too. But she didn't think it was funny at all.

"How could she even think such a beastly thing?" she asked herself as Claire went away, calling over her shoulder that they must all spend New Year's Eve together, and that she hoped Sandy would soon be better, and that Mary Faith must be sure to tell him that she had come to see him while he slept.

"I thought I heard that Maldon woman in here—that's why I didn't come in," said Mrs. Farrell from the doorway of the dining-room as soon as the door had closed upon Claire. "Oh, what a voice she has! And the way she runs on about Kimberley! She's in love with him, mark my words! I've said so before and I say so again."

Mary Faith hardly thought of Claire in the next few weeks. Aunt Ella came up from Garrettsville to do her Christmas shopping, and Mary Faith went with her on two snowy afternoons, bringing home packages and an armful of evergreens and holly on each occasion.

Mr. McIntire had turned over a very important case to Kim—a case that had to do with the breaking of a will. Kim worked and worried over it, and two or three times he telephoned Mary Faith that he wouldn't be home for dinner, and that if she wanted him, he would be at the office.

"Don't call me unless it's necessary," he said. "And if I'm not here, it's because I'm either on my way home or having something to eat in a restaurant—alone. Alone, do you understand?"

"Oh, Kim, don't rub it into me that I'm a jealous, suspicious wife. You know I trust you even if I am jealous."

She did. She never called up the office on the nights when he was not at home.

Christmas was a complete success. A regular story-book snowstorm had wrapped Wilton Street in the whiteness of a wedding veil. The flat was warm and fragrant with the odor of holly and fir and roast goose. The baby stood on his little feet for the first time to touch the shining blown-glass ornaments on his Christmas tree. Aunt Ella had stayed for the holidays, and Dr. Thatcher came to the family dinner at four o'clock.

Dodgers of Gold Embargo

Now Sending Millions Weekly to Europe

WASHINGTON—The flight of the American dollar to Europe continues at the rate of about $30,000,000 a week, according to unofficial but reasonably accurate estimates reaching the Capital from New York. To beat Roosevelt's embargo on gold dollars is proving easy for those who buy Dutch, French, Swiss or other sound foreign bonds, mail them abroad, sell them there, and deposit the money in a foreign bank. It's surprising how many 'patriots' are doing this. . . . An indication that the official champagne parties of pre-prohibition will soon be back occurred at the Pan-American Union this week. Champagne, cocktails and a regal assortment of beverages was served in honor of the birthday of Simon Bolivar, Latin America's George Washington. . . . It has always been permissible to serve liquor in the Pan-American Union, since it belongs to all the Americas, but in deference to the United States Latin Americans heretofore have refrained.

Deadlier Than the Male

Dwight Davis, donor of the famed tennis cup and ex-governor of the Philippines, has taken a house in Washington to watch the New Deal next winter. The house belongs to Roosevelt's first cousin, Warren Delano Robbins, now Minister to Canada. . . . Lady Perkins is not as good an executive as she was cracked up to be. Her Labor Department has had a hard time getting organized. But there is one thing about her which everyone has come to recognize. She is a knock-down-drag-out fighter, and she

Balanced Diet Is Urged In Curing This Ailment

Doctor Declares Condition Should Never Be Neglected; Gives Simple Rules

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

DO YOU know that the name "halitosis" comes from the Latin word "halitus," meaning breath? Within recent years this has become a familiar word used in the daily vocabulary of everybody. As we understand it, it means an abnormal, malodorous state of the breath.

No one will deny that halitosis is a dreaded affliction. Its prevention is far easier than its cure.

This disability can be traced to several disturbances of the mouth and intestinal tract. Many persons believe it is only caused by neglect of the teeth. This is not true.

Infected and neglected teeth and gums are frequent cause of bad breath, of course. But it can also be traced to diseased tonsils, infected nasal sinuses, and inflammation of any part of the digestive tract. Diseases of the mouth, tongue, esophagus or "food pipe," are causes that must not be overlooked.

An Unhealthy Condition

I need not tell you, of course, that under no circumstances is it advisable to neglect halitosis. It is an annoying and distressing affliction in mind that it is not a disease. It is a symptom which results from an unhealthy condition. It is nature's sign of warning and should not be neglected.

Few people brush their teeth properly. Neglect of this simple duty allows food particles to accumulate between the teeth, in cavities of the teeth and beneath faulty and defective bridge work. Decomposition of this material gives rise to unpleasant odors.

Keep in mind that by simply brushing the teeth in any fashion and occasionally using a mouth gargle will not prevent this undesirable affliction. The teeth must be brushed up and down with a stiff bristle brush. Use dental floss between the food particles and undigested morsels of food that give off offensive odors.

Many a person has a rough tongue, capable of holding food particles. The heavy coating decomposes and causes an unpleasant odor. Gently scraping the tongue will overcome this.

Faulty Eating Habits

Frequently halitosis may be due to faulty eating habits, improper diet, indigestion or constipation. When halitosis persists in spite of proper care of the teeth and gums, a physical examination by a physician is recommended. If necessary, X-ray pictures of the stomach and intestines should be taken.

May I impress upon you the importance of a well balanced diet. Include plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. Chew your food slowly and carefully. Never hurry through a meal. Meals should be eaten at a definite time each day. Drink from six to eight glasses of water a day; A daily elimination is imperative. If necessary, a daily enema or regular doses of mineral oil, should be taken.

As I have mentioned, halitosis is not a disease. It is merely a symptom or sign of some disturbance that requires attention. Do not neglect it.

is not afraid to go to the mat to a fare-thee-well with her chief in the White House when she is convinced she is right. . . . "Old Doc" Hubert Work, of Colorado, Hoover's first campaign manager, has gone to the White Mountains. So have Senator and Mrs. Costigan, also of Colorado.

Departing

Administration leaders intimate privately that "Seaboard Bill" Stevenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Board, is on the skids. . . . The White House apparently is not satisfied with the way things are going in this part of the recovery program. . . . Stevenson has been "called" on the White House mat for embarrassing statements he has given to the press. . . . One of these, to the effect that Republicans would not be given places in the Home Loan organization stirred such a rumpus that Stevenson called a conference of the reporters and sought to make them retreat. They stuck by the stenographic record of his remarks. . . . Stevenson's practice of naming important officials in the organization without first consulting Administration chieftains also got him into hot water.

Exit "Neera"

NRA, the new designation for the National Industrial Recovery Administration, is the brain child of General Hugh Johnson. . . . He didn't like the original NIRA, which everyone was soon pronouncing as "Neera". . . . Gerard Wolravens, new attaché of the Belgian Embassy, is one of the best amateur swimmers in Belgium. . . . Faik Konitza, Mohammedan Minister of Albania, has been hounded by ladies who want him to get an Albanian woman to attend their feminist convention in Chicago. After incessant requests, equally numerous turn-downs, and continued demands as to why Albania could not send a representative, the Minister's patience snapped. "My dear Madame," he finally told one lady, "the women of my country are too occupied in taking care of their homes husbands and babies to bother about feminist conventions."

Balbo Reciprocity

General Balbo's mass transatlantic flight has fired Navy aeronautical chiefs with a similar idea. They have already started talking about the desirability of sending an American air squadron to Europe. . . . One barrier in the way is the cost. Balbo told Navy men here that the Italian junket cost over $1,000,000 plus $2,000,000 shot-ats.

Coeds at Mine School

GOLDEN, Colo.—The Colorado School of Mines is going effeminate. Old grads shook their heads ruefully when they learned recently that the largest number of coeds ever to enroll at one time had signed up for the summer term.

A local postess, who lives her point, took a widely advertised co-sick remedy last evening before starting one on ships.

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

A real feature attraction has been booked to appear at the Grand theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Walter Eschman, the manager, announced Saturday.

It is Jack Bigelow and his Original Sioux Indian revue featuring the Indian girl band and eight acts.

Included in the show are the Raymond Brothers, in "Too Late for Broadway", Five Rhythm girls, Virginia Bigelow, playing 17 instruments; Mildred Herr in "Blues as You Like Them", Patti Jackson in "Acrobatic a La Pio", Edith Bigelow "World's Greatest Trombonist", Gracie J. Lawrence in "Something new and sensational in dancing" and Pay Raymond in "All For Fun."

This production is in conjunction with the regular feature, James Dunn and Sally Eilers in "Sailor's Luck."

AT THE CLIFTONA

Laughter is dished out in hey-nony, hoop-boop-ahop tempo by those whimsical and chattering comies, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in their latest production, "Diplomaniacs" scheduled to open at the Cliftona Theatre Sunday.

The cast certainly is nonny-nony-boop, with Marjorie White, Phyllis Barry and Hugh Herbert in principal roles, and Larry Ceballos' trained beauties supplying the chorus numbers.

Miss White, giggling little blonde comedienne, the current "hey-nony-nony girl" of the Gay White Way, appears first wrapped in cellophane, like a cigar. She is delivered as a "bonde vauu", guaranteed untouched by human hands." She goes for Wheeler in a big way.

The plot of "Diplomaniacs" is meaty and snappy. Frolic of fun which pokes inspired gags at the Geneva Peace Conference and practically everything of current interest.

pounds. It was quarried at Lancaster and hauled to McDermott, O., where it was cut and designed by the Taylor Stone Co., which firm owned it at the time it was wrecked.

STALLED ON TRACK

Railca had just started to leave this city when the engine of the truck stalled as it started to cross the track. The driver tried every way to get it started but could not when he saw the freight train making the curve north of the city.

Officer Tom McManamy and J. W. Crigo, who witnessed the mishap, started up the track to flag the train but the flashlight of the officer used did not have much effect against the headlights of the train and before Engineer William Geisel, of Columbus, could see the truck on the track it was too late.

Railca left the truck when he saw he could not get it started.

The truck and its load were scattered on both sides of the double tracks for about 150 feet. The stone was demolished and the remains of the truck are worth about five cents. The Reliable Motors Co. removed the wreckage while a section crew of the railroad removed the sandstone from the right-of-way.

TRAIN DELAYED HOUR

It is fortunate the train, No. 2018, had only 29 cars on it. With more cars a more serious accident, at least as far as the train is concerned, might have happened. The train was delayed one hour.

Railca said two of the sandstone blocks on the truck were valued at about $100 each. On one of them 48 stars for the 48 states were engraved and on the other a picture of the globe was engraved.

Railca jokingly said: "It's a good thing this wreck wasn't two days ago when I had the cornerstone on the truck. That is worth $500 alone." He managed to salvage a screw-driver and a wrench from the wreckage.

Another truck, driven by William Fetters of Strasburg, remained in this city Friday night.

Former Democratic State Chairman Henry G. Brunner, the Ohio manager, plans to begin work next week, and start making appointments soon afterward.

Many postmasterhips are yet to come. The federal re-employment service, the state advisory board on federal public works, and the industrial recovery program all are expected to supply Democratic jobs from time to time.

But the NRA reserves the right to review all "equitable adjustments" and announced decisions.

Employers are warned that they cannot reduce wages of those above the minimum wage group to compensate them for bringing low-paid workers up to the minimum.

In making adjustments of wages above the minimum wage group, employers are urged to maintain the same wage for reduced hours if possible.

This would require a five-sevenths increase of hourly pay in a 60-hour-a-week group, which legal aids said would be too great for the employer to bear. A fair increase would be acceptable.
